Prisoner Asks Wife to Take Lutheran Minister On Next Prison Visit

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 23—Additional contributions to the defense fund of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, convicted slayer of the Lindbergh baby, had reached a new high of $10,000, according to C. Lloyd Fisher, Flemington, N. J., counsel for Hauptmann.

Fisher declared that the defense would require about $25,000. Since the State has already agreed to pay the primary cost of printing the transcript of the Hauptmann trial, Fisher was asked why all this money would be required.

"There will be plenty of things to pay for with this money," he replied.

Word from the death house at Trenton State Prison, where Hauptmann is confined today, revealed he had requested his wife to bring a Lutheran minister with her on her next visit to the prison.

Keen Competition Shown For P. T. A. Attendance Banner

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Feb. 23—The regular meeting of Cornwells P. T. A. was held in the high school auditorium, Thursday evening, with Mrs. Roscoe Perkins, president, in charge.

Minutes of the preceding meeting were read by Miss Withers, secretary.

A motion was passed to make a donation of $2 to the Founders' Day Fund, and another to buy the soap, as heretofore, for the containers in the school.

An invitation was received from the Andalusia P. T. A. to attend its meeting on April 15th. A committee will be appointed to organize a delegation.

Competition was exceptionally keen for the attendance banner, which was won by Miss Withers' class with 52%, followed closely by Miss Snyder with 51.5% and Mr. Bixler with 51%.

It was announced that on March 16th there will be a St. Patrick's dance in the auditorium, under auspices of the senior class. This will be a subscription affair and invitations may be secured from members of the class.

The following program was given: Songs in honor of Washington, pupils of fifth and sixth grades, directed by Miss Withers; "American National Anthem," orchestra, under direction of Miss Davies; trumpet quartet, "I Would That My Love" (Mendelssohn), Ethel Hartman, Kimbel Faust, George Funke, Norman Foster; exercise, honoring the birthdays of 35 famous people occurring in February; dance, "Minuet," eight girls.

In commemoration of Founders' Day, S. K. Faust, superintendent, gave a resume of the founding, growth, meaning and purpose of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, organized February 17, 1897.

Following the program the annual Washington Tea was held in the cafeteria, which was appropriately decorated. Dancing was enjoyed in the Auditorium.

Opportunity for Expression
On Constitution Revision

APPEALS TO THE SENATE

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23—Franklin Spencer Edmunds, noted constitutional authority, who has been heard pleading for reform bills at many sessions of the Legislature, added his voice last week to those asking for deliberation in consideration of the proposed revision of the State Constitution.

Mr. Edmunds, one of the most highly regarded members of the Pennsylvania Bar, made a special trip to Harrisburg to ask the Senate to insist that the people of the State be given an opportunity to say whether or not they desire revision before revision is forced on them.

Club Formed by Class of Girls; Officers Are Chosen

The Sunday School class of St. James's Episcopal Church, taught by Miss Inez Adams, met at the home of Miss Marjorie Mulholland, Bath Road, last evening.

A club was formed and the following officers elected: President, Jean Roberts; vice-president, Marion Mulholland; secretary, Julia Houser; treasurer, Miss Adams. Other members of the class are: Irene Sharp, Nan Townsend, Ruth Rothenberger.

A social hour and refreshments were enjoyed.

Three Feature Attractions Are at The Grand Today

There will be three distinct feature attractions at the Grand Theatre this afternoon and night, making one of the most unique shows ever presented in Bristol. The feature picture will be Ben Lyons and Sari Maritz in "The Crimson Romance," showing the thrilling adventures of an American boy who through his friendship of a chum enlisted in the German Army during the early part of the World War, and his display of loyalty to his own United States after she entered this great conflict. It has a thrilling romance interwoven and the thrills and suspense will hold one spellbound.

"Toyland Broadcast," a very distinctive cartoon in Technicolor, will be an attraction extraordinary. This is a beautiful comedy that is creating as much comment all over the country as the famous Three Little Pigs cartoon. As a special added attraction, the official pictures of the sensational heavyweight contest between Max Baer, the champion, and King Levinzsky, in their recent contest at the Chicago Stadium, will be shown. It shows the confident Levinzsky as he asks Baer to come and fight and how the champion answers by knocking him out so completely that he did not recover for fully five minutes.

There will be for added measure, a Charlie Chase comedy, "Something Simple," News Events of the Day, and Buck Jones in the super-serial, "Red Riders."

Class Has Theatre Party Followed By Fine Dinner

COMPLETE PREPARATIONS FOR TRIALS OF SEVEN OF THE MAIS-LEGENZA GANG; FOUR ARE CHARGED WITH MURDER

Court Will Announce That Trials Are Not To Be Turned Into a "Show"—Likely Only One Case Will Be Completed
This Court—Judge Boyer to Preside at Opening

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 23—Preparations have been completed for the trial of the William (Big Nose) Weiss kidnap-murder case which will get under way in the Court of Over and Terminer of Bucks County, Monday morning at 10 o'clock, in Court Room No. 1.

Announcement will be made at the opening of the case in which there are seven defendants, four of whom are charged with the murder of the former Philadelphia alcohol racketeer, that the Court will under no condition allow "a show" to be made out of this trial.

Judge Calvin S. Boyer will preside at the trial of the first of the remaining members of the Mais-Legenza gang whom the State will ask to be sent to the electric chair.

The first of the seven defendants to be tried, and it is likely that only one case will be disposed of at the February session of Court, will be Francis Wiley, 27, of Philadelphia, who will be brought here from the Eastern Penitentiary from which place he escaped last July through a sewer pipe and was later caught. In March, 1933, Wiley was sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years in the "pen" on a robbery charge in Philadelphia. He had previously escaped on July 21, 1934, with Martin Farrell, 28, Philadelphia, who will also be tried for the Weiss murder.

Wiley will be represented at the trial by Webster S. Achey, Doylestown attorney. The State's case will be prosecuted by District Attorney Arthur M. Eastburn and Assistant District Attorney Edward G. Biester. The prosecutor named in the bills of indictment is County Detective Antonio Russo.

In addition to Wiley and Farrell facing the electric chair for the kidnapping and murder of Weiss, Matthew Barrow alias Matt Barrett, 36, of 1819 Rockland street, Philadelphia; Charge, accessory after the fact to murder; single.

Joseph James Coffey, 27, of Philadelphia; Harry Seibel alias Harry Siebels, 40, Philadelphia; and Mrs. Beatrice Wilkinson, 32, Philadelphia, are charged in the same case with accessory after the fact to murder.

Weiss was kidnapped from his home in West Philadelphia last October and was taken to a bungalow at Torresdale Manor, Bucks county, where he was secretly while $800 ransom money of an original $50,000 that was demanded, was collected. He was "taken for a ride" on the night of November 6, shot twice and killed and then tossed into the icy waters of the Neshaminy Creek near Croydon after his legs had

"The Weiss Murder Case"

The following persons are defendants in the William (Big Nose) Weiss murder cases that will go on trial Monday morning in the Bucks County Court House, at Doylestown:

Francis Wiley, 27, Philadelphia; Charge, murder; garage worker who was sentenced to the Eastern Penitentiary in March, 1933, for 10 to 20 years for robbery, and who escaped from the "pen" through a sewer pipe on July 21, 1934; single.

Martin Farrell, 28, Philadelphia; Charge, murder; truck driver who was sentenced to Eastern Penitentiary in October, 1932, for 6½ to 13 years from Delaware county for robbery; escaped from "pen" through sewer pipe on July 21, 1934; married.

Matthew Barrow alias Matt Barrett, 36, Philadelphia; Charge, murder, accessory after the fact to murder, aiding in secreting a kidnapped person; steel worker; single.

Robert James Eckert, 38, Philadelphia; Charge, murder, accessory after the fact to murder, aiding in secreting a kidnapped person; steel worker; single.

Joseph James Coffey, 27, of 1342 Newkirk street, Philadelphia; Charge, accessory after the fact to murder; truck driver; single.

Harry Seibel alias Harry Siebels, 40, of 1819 Rockland street, Philadelphia; Charge, accessory after the fact to murder; engineer; single.

Mrs. Beatrice Wilkinson, 32, of 4351 North Sixth street, Philadelphia; Charge, accessory after the fact to murder.

been tied with wire and his body weighted down with iron railroad fishplates.

Because of the fact that only 72 jurors have been called for service during the murder trial, and because 17 have already been excused for various reasons, it is not probable that it will be possible to get a jury to try Wiley, out of the limited panel. If the panel becomes exhausted, Sheriff Horace E. Gwinner will be given orders to empanel additional jurors.

It is possible that some of those indicted in the Weiss case may enter a plea of guilty and be disposed of at this term.

EX-GOVERNOR STOKES TO TALK TO STUDENT COUNCIL

Will Make Principal Address
At Meeting To Be Held In Morrisville

TO BE HELD ON MARCH 9

MORRISVILLE, Feb. 23—Former Governor Edward C. Stokes, of New Jersey, will give the principal address at the Bucks County Student Council Conference to be held in the Robert Morris High School auditorium on Saturday, March 9th. Mr. Stokes has informed the president of the Morrisville High School Student Council, Theodore Hansen, that he will be present at the morning session of the conference and will speak on "Student Government and the Government of the Future."

Other speakers scheduled to speak before the conference include Assistant County Superintendent Charles H. Boehm, Supervising Principal Manohar R. Reiter, and Martin C. Wright, student council advisor.

Seventeen schools which either have a student form of government or are interested in forming one, have been invited to send two delegates and a faculty representative to the meeting. Student council presidents from Bensalem, Quakertown, Doylestown and Sellersville-Perkasie high schools will give short outlines of what their organizations have done in self-government during the year.

Hansen, as president of the local student organization, will preside over the sessions, which will be divided into morning and afternoon meetings. A free lunch will be served the delegates and faculty representatives in the high school cafeteria under the direction of Miss Betty Marvin, home economics instructor of the school.

The morning session of the conference will be devoted to speeches and an outline of what is being done in student government throughout the schools of the county. The afternoon session will include an introduction of the delegation present, and the election of county officers to the conference for next year.

The Classic Quartette, a musical organization composed of graduate students of the high school, will furnish the music.

NESHAMONY LODGE OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

Hulmeville Organization Is Host to Families and Friends
On Eighty-Fourth Birthday

A PLEASING PROGRAM

HULMEVILLE, Feb. 23—In observance of the 84th anniversary of the founding of Neshamony Lodge, No. 422, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, a special program was presented in the lodge quarters last evening, with members being hosts to their families and friends. Approximately 100 were in attendance.

Four addresses were included, these being pertinent to Odd Fellowship, and included: "Origin of Odd Fellowship in America," by William Brackie; "Origin of Odd Fellowship in Pennsylvania," by Lynn M. Taylor, noble grand; "History of Wild Rose Rebekah Lodge, No. 254," Mrs. Fred Julliff, p. n. g.; "History of Neshamony Lodge, No. 422," Harry Seltzer, p. e.

In his opening remarks, Mr. Seltzer said: "Today we celebrate the 263rd anniversary of George Washington, as history teaches us of a great leader, the Father of our country; and this evening we are celebrating the 84th anniversary of Neshamony Lodge. Let us sit back in our chairs and picture back 84 years, and see what a group of men were doing here at that time. Their aim was to start in this village of Hulmeville a fraternal order of Odd Fellows." He continued by telling of how some members walked for miles, while others travelled by carriage, in order to live up to the spirit of Odd Fellowship. The guests were informed that the local lodge was instituted on the 25th of February, 1851, with 20 charter members, and meetings were held in Sons of Temperance Hall on Hulme street.

The membership has included ministers, authors, lawyers, doctors, artists, artisans, farmers. "None are rejected because they are too poor nor admitted because they are rich. All meet here upon one common level, with the same mission in view: to visit the sick, relieve the distressed, bury the dead, educate the orphan, and take care of the aged."

Jolly Eight Club Has Washington Party Here

Members of the Jolly Eight Club held a Washington's Birthday party yesterday at the home of Miss Margaret Carroll.

The decorative scheme was red, white and blue. Numerous flags were in evidence and the favors were Washington hats and cherries.

The young folks arrived in colonial costumes. "The Life of Washington" was recited by Miss Anne Fitzgerald; and a Salute to the Flag was staged previous to an afternoon of games. Prize winners were: Anne Fitzgerald, Jacqueline Woolley, and Florence Leinski. Other participants were Mary Nelson, Mary Jane Gallagher, Eleanor Dugan, Helen Ostroski and Margaret Carroll.

GIFT BOOK AWAITS EACH SUBSCRIBER OF COURIER

Prepared by Miss Schneider in Conjunction With Her Appearance Here

DELIVERED ON TUESDAY

A gift is awaiting every subscriber of The Bristol Courier.

The gift, a helpful booklet for home-makers and cooks, entitled "Short Cuts to the Dinner Table" by Vera A. Schneider, will be delivered to subscribers with their copy of the Courier on Tuesday next.

The booklet is being presented in conjunction with the appearance of the authoress, Miss Schneider, in Bristol, next week, when she will conduct a cooking and home-makers school for The Bristol Courier on the afternoons of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The sessions of the school will be from two to four o'clock on each of the three days, and will occur in Mutual Aid Hall, Wood street, between Jefferson and Lincoln avenues. This is Miss Schneider's second appearance at the Courier cooking schools, she having conducted the 1934 school also.

The cover of the booklet "Short Cuts to the Dinner Table" shows a delightful likeness of Miss Schneider, the lecture-demonstrator appearing in one of her model kitchens.

The contents of the books are: Appetizers and soups, beverages, breads and muffins, salads, vegetables; meat, fish and accompaniments; cakes, pies and desserts. And directions for preparing each are clearly given.

The home-maker will find many helpful suggestions for daily meals in this booklet prepared by Miss Schneider, the dietitian. The hostess will be pleased with the salad and dessert suggestions, as well as with the recipes for every item in a fine dinner.

If you are planning a party, whether for children or grown-ups, you will be aided by the unusual cakes, etc., such as cream meringue cake, lemon chiffon graham cracker pie; or you might prefer oatmeal date strips or French cream tarts. And speaking of vegetables, there is a recipe for Italian spinach, baked tomatoes filled with corn, Duchess noodles, Harvard beets. And when it comes to salads, there might be mentioned: Banana split salad, fresh shrimp salad, or the tasty Ambassador salad made of red cabbage, almonds, pineapple, water-cress and mayonnaise.

And added to these are numerous assorted hors d'oeuvres, and miscellaneous items.

A copy of the booklet will be presented as a gift to every Courier subscriber on Tuesday next, the day previous to the opening of the school.

Former Resident Here Dies at Beverly Home

A former resident of Bristol, John H. Lefferts, died yesterday, the anniversary of his birth, in his sixty-sixth year. Of late years he has resided with his family at 520 Broad street, Beverly, N. J.

The deceased was the husband of Anna B. Lefferts (nee Jackson) and son of the late Simon and Anna M. Lefferts and brother of James V. Lefferts of Bristol.

He is survived by his wife; four daughters, Mrs. Helen Morgan, Mrs. Florence Horn, of Burlington, N. J., Mrs. Edna Cramp, Mrs. Mildred Emilen of Beverly, N. J.; one son, J. Herbert Lefferts, Beverly, N. J., six grandchildren and his brother.

While a resident of Bristol, Mr. Lefferts was employed by the Hughes Hosiery Co. and later by T. B. Harkins Foundry Co. He was also bass drummer of the old Liberty Comet Band.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon, Feb. 25, at 3 o'clock from Slack's Funeral Parlor, E. Broad street, Burlington, N. J. Interment in Odd Fellows Cemetery. Friends may call Sunday evening.

GREGES GOES INSANE

New York City, Feb. 23—Frederick Greges, 67 year old "honest watchman" who a few weeks ago was catapulted into the nation's headlines and a comparative fortune, as the "honest man of Wall Street" by turning in to police a wallet containing $42,000 in negotiable securities, was violently insane today.

The formerly mild little man threw his bowery lodging house into an uproar when he flung himself writhing and moaning upon the floor and in stentorian tones, proclaimed he was God. He raved that those upon whom he cast his fatal glance, died; that he had looked upon only three men, fatally, that day.

Finally Greges was maneuvered down the stairs and at the police station was restored to apparent calm.

WOUNDED BY BANDIT

Berwick, Feb. 23—Arthur Sult, 35, night clerk at the Hotel Berwick, was shot and critically wounded early today by a nervous bandit who attempted to stage a hold-up. The .32 calibre bullet struck Sult in the right side and nicked his backbone in passing almost entirely through the body. He was taken to the Berwick Hospital where an emergency operation was performed. Obviously nervous, the bandit fired unexpectedly as Sult walked back to the hotel office with his hands in the air and turned to open the door.

I DEAD, I DYING, AFTER FIGHTS

Philadelphia, Feb. 23—A pistol blazed and a knife slashed in two taproom fights here, leaving one man dead and another dying today. Culminating an argument followed by a fistful duel, Richard Kimball, 37, was stabbed to death with a penknife wielded, police say, by Joseph Roman, 28. Roman was arrested and held for a hearing today. In the second taproom brawl Theodore Quirk, 39, bartender, was shot and critically wounded by a Negro patron, Bruno Lewis.

EDWARDS COUNSEL WITHDRAWS

Wilkes-Barre, Feb. 23—Attorney John Phillips today withdrew as counsel for Robert Allen Edwards, 22, convicted "American tragedy" killer, by accepting an appointment at the staff of District Attorney Thomas McLees, who prosecuted the young mining engineer for the slaying of his neighborhood sweetheart, Freda McKechnie, 26.

SNOW AND SLUSH TIES UP TRAFFIC; LIGHTS OUT

Sleet Storm Interrupts Street Lighting Service Throughout the Night

ONE ARREST IS MADE

The snow later turning to slush which began falling yesterday morning, is held responsible for one automobile accident in this vicinity. Other accidents occurred in the Doylestown area, and traffic in general was delayed. Street lighting service in Bristol was seriously interrupted throughout the night. State highway guards worked during the night, clearing the highways on hills, curves, and at intersections.

An open circuit was caused by the wind and sleet, according to representatives of the Philadelphia Electric Company, thus interrupting lighting service in the sixth ward from 10:50 p. m. throughout the night. Other sections of the town reported intermittent service to the police department. Employees of the electric company worked throughout the night to make repairs, and were still at their task this morning.

The driver of an automobile on Route 422, between South Langhorne and Woodside, was arrested for failing to signal when halting his machine. It is stated that due to the snow on the highway a car following could not be stopped in time, and a crash occurred, with resultant damage to both cars.

The driver arrested is George Magyer, 224 Gibbs avenue, Hamilton Township, N. J. At a hearing before justice of the peace D. H. Krause, Langhorne, Magyer was found guilty and fines and costs imposed. The driver of the car crashing into the rear of the Magyer machine was Fred Harm, 3rd, of 714 S. Pennsylvania avenue, Morrisville. It was reported that when Harm attempted to halt his car it skidded into the machine ahead. Occupants of neither machine were injured. The case was investigated by trooper Carfagno, of South Langhorne barracks of the State Highway Patrol.

Accidents occurring in the Doylestown area yesterday afternoon resulted in injuries to 11 people.

COUNTY BANKERS OPPOSE PLAN FOR A CENTRAL BANK

Unanimously Adopt Resolution to Congressman and Senators from District

URGE ROAD REPAIRING

Suggest Cross-County Concrete Highway from Upper to Lower Section

NEW HOPE, Feb. 23—The Bucks County Bankers Association yesterday unanimously adopted a resolution opposing the organization of a central bank by the Federal Government and approved the report of its "Good Roads Committee" advocating improvement of three main highways in the county, and for the first time was addressed by a woman speaker.

The bankers to the number of 150 met in annual session in the morning in the high school, where the business session was held. Adjournment was then taken to Worthington hall where a turkey dinner was served and an address was listened to.

Action opposing the central bank was taken at the afternoon meeting when the following resolution was adopted without a dissenting voice:

"Resolved: That the Bucks County Bankers Association place itself on record as opposed to the pending legislation advocating a central bank and;

"Be it further resolved: That the secretary of this association forward a copy of this resolution to our congressman and senators at Washington."

The morning session got underway at 11 o'clock, being called to order by William W. Hurley, New Hope, president.

Nona Lappan Pleases The Rotarians With Selections

Musical numbers featured the program which followed the weekly business and luncheon meeting of the Bristol Rotary Club in the Elks Home, Thursday.

The vocalist was Nona Lappan, South Langhorne, her numbers including: "We Never Grow Old" (Sauris); Second Minuet (Besly); Villa, from "The Merry Widow" (Lehar); "Tiny Little Finger Tips" (Slept). This vocalist has appeared before the Rotarians here on a number of occasions, and is always a welcome artist. Music committee chairman Samuel Shire was in charge of the program.

Routine business was transacted, with Jacob C. Schmidt, Sr., presiding.

Celebrates On Anniversary Of Her Tenth Birthday

The tenth birthday party of Miss Isabel Heath was held at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Heath, Buckley street, Thursday evening.

Attendants were: Doris Dolan, Winnifred Kelly, Marie Fallon, Mary and Peggy Harkins, Regina Ennis, Helen Hoffman, Lorraine Fallon (Rita Dugan, Mary Frances Fallon, Leonard Fallon, Rita McHugh and Peggy Heath).

A merry time of games was enjoyed and a birthday feast served. Prizes were given to Helen Hoffman for singing and Lorraine Fallon for skill in a money guessing contest.

"MICKEY MOUSE" AIDS BASKETEERS

(By "The Stroller")
Although "Mickey Mouse", the mascot of the Bristol high school girls' basketball team, wears red trunks, the same shade as those worn by the girls, he gives only moral support to the team. But that means much, for the first game played by the sextet after Mickey was adopted was won by Bristol.

Mickey, a doll who boasts of a foot of height, and looks quite "spiffy" in the red pants which fit tightly over his smooth black velvet hide, has been with the team only a few months, but he has won the hearts of all the girls. They never forget to take him to a basketball game, feeling that his presence will spur them on, and probably bring good luck.

Bearing out this statement, the girls point to the fact that an old mascot, a white cat, was with them when they first played Morrisville this year, and Bristol lost. In the next game with the up-river team, Mickey made his presence felt, and the Bristolians won.

The girls from Bristol have been winning consistently this year, and they give "Mickey Mouse" no end of praise, for his cheering

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 23, 1935

A CONTINUING JOB

Permanent highways have not yet been laid and it is highly probable that they never will be.

The work of road building in any part of the country is not done when the covering is removed from the concrete or asphalt and the asphalt and the shoulders are banked up to the pavement. It will not be long before repairs are required and changes will be deemed necessary. Roads wear out; weather conditions work heavy damage; great trucks carrying freight car-loads smash and break them and pound their surfaces full of defects.

None of the roads put down, say five to 15 years ago, fully meets present-day requirements. They must be widened; new surfaces must be laid; curves must be modified; danger spots must be made safer; intersections must be improved; grade crossings must be eliminated. In many instances they must be practically rebuilt.

When road improvement was first started, little was known about building highways as we consider them at present and a great many mistakes were made, not only in the building but in their location. Hard roads were laid in unnecessary places in those years, for it was all under the direction of local officials and such a thing as a state system was not contemplated.

The result is that in every state the work of rebuilding is perhaps as extensive as new work.

And this must go on—for there will be little or no reduction in the extent of automotive traffic. We must keep mending and improving our "ways," year after year, making them better all the time. It is a continuous process, with its advantages extending not simply to the people using the roads, but to the many thousands of workers rebuilding or reshaping them to current requirements.

NO POLITICAL IMMORTALITY

Apparently, even kingfishes are not immortal. In point is the story from Zion City. It says that the opposition to Overseer Wilbur Glenn Voliva won the municipal primary and as a consequence predicted that an anti-Voliva government will be elected on April 16.

If the overseer of Zion City has less than two more months to rule his empire—small though it is—it has become his own—then the kingfish down by what they call the "byoo," may well be on guard against the hooks that are being set for him. For Wilbur Glenn Voliva was a kingfish in his own right before Huey Long had cut his political eye-teeth on what appears to have been a Standard Oil container.

Zion City was never a large realm, but it seemed to have the quality of permanence. At such times as he set off to prove the world as flat as a pancake, Wilbur Glenn knew that Zion would be waiting when he returned. Yet here it is the end of February, and the news from Zion City is that Voliva has only until April 16 to rule.

O mores, O tempora! The kingfish business is surely fallen upon evil days when the pioneer in the business is thus reported to have been put on the spot. Huey may well turn his eyes toward Zion City and meditate upon the way of all political flesh.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES ARE ANNOUNCED FOR THE BRISTOL CHURCHES FOR SUNDAY

The Rev. Llewellyn K. Anderson, who is a Presbyterian missionary in Africa, will speak in Bristol Presbyterian Church, Sunday at 11:00 a. m., and at the Church of the Saviour at 8:00 p. m.

From the snows of Canada to the heart of tropical Africa is a considerable shift, but that is the change which Mr. Anderson made in going to French Cameroon. He is a graduate of McGill University, Montreal, where his work as manager of the football team and as a member of an orchestra gave him experience valuable in later life; and at Princeton Theological Seminary he continued his interest in an all-round career.

In the eight years he has spent in West Africa, Mr. Anderson has lived in different sections, one far inland on the edge of the sleeping sickness belt; one nearer the coast, and nearer, too, to the district where lives a tribe of pygmies occasionally visited by the white people. The country today is a strong mixture of old and new, so that Mr. Anderson as he goes about on his journeys sometimes travels in approved modern style in a Detroit-made car over motor roads constructed by French government engineers; or he finds himself back in the old Africa, getting over the bush trails as best he can, on foot, on a bicycle, or in that invention of the white man in Africa, the bush chair, an affair of rattan with a wheel fore and aft, which is pushed and pulled over the trails by runners. Motor-cycles may sometimes be used, though a hill with a 40-degree slope, and a trail three inches deep in sticky mud, is not the best surface on which to try to ride.

Mr. Anderson's work consists in oversight of the 56 village churches and congregations established throughout the Bafia district. More than a hundred African evangelists and other workers are on the staff of this station.

YOUR HEALTH

Health talk of the Pennsylvania State Department of Health and published by the Bristol Borough Board of Health.

Much of the printed information covering the subject of tooth-brushing fails to include the gums. One is advised to use this or that type of brush. Then again, claims of superiority are made for the marketed tooth-pastes and powders. On this latter subject a great deal is said about removing tartar, stains and maintaining or attaining tooth-whiteness. The fact is, however, that the gums also demand attention. A healthy color is just as essential for them as for the teeth themselves, the Pennsylvania State Department of Health indicated in a statement today.

There is no objection to the habitual use of most of the tooth-cleansing preparations now offered for sale. Assuming that they do not contain harmful abrasives, and there is little proof that any of the popular brands and even brands not so well known offend on this point, the use of a tooth-paste or powder can be controlled largely by individual taste.

The point is, once the choice has been made, it becomes vital that this important hygienic agent be effectively used. And most decidedly the daily toothbrushing rite will have fallen far short of its purposes if the gums are overlooked.

Many persons who conscientiously brush their teeth possess gums that are bluish red; others have pale gums; while still others have brilliantly red ones. Any of these hues indicate in varying degrees an unhealthy gum condition. The color that proves healthy gum tissue is coral pink.

It should be understood that the color of a gum is due to the circulation. And, as elsewhere in the body, rubbing stimulates circulation. This means that the gums should be daily massaged by the brush. Not, however, to the point where irritation and soreness result.

To gums that have been accustomed to this procedure, massaging should be started with gentleness. The pressure can consistently be increased until a reasonable amount is applied.

Massaging, thus in a manner, gives the gums the stimulation which was obtained naturally by prehistoric man in tearing flesh and consuming raw foods. It is civilization's equivalent to the exercise obtained when the human race was less luxurious. But, above all, it is one of the prime secrets of a healthy mouth.

HOUSING QUESTION BOX

Q.—I expect to erect a yellow pine home and other farm buildings. What are the most important methods to use to get the strongest frame buildings?

A.—Strong foundation footings for walls and posts starting on firm soil below the frost line are essential for permanent construction. Provide drainage to prevent damp basements. Bolt sills to foundations. Strengthen joists with cross bridging. Rest studding on the sills, and where studs support second-story joists they should have a continuous ribbon notched into them and have joists spiked to their sides. Strengthen walls with diagonal ribbon bracing notched into the studding. Apply sheathing diagonally. Anchor rafters to main frame.

Q.—Some of the radiators in my home heat up quickly while others take quite a long time to get warm. How can I locate the trouble?

A.—Frequently this uneven heating is caused by air in the radiators. Water in the drainage pipes due to insufficient pitch, or other causes. Clean, repair, or, if necessary, replace the radiator valve, which should automatically let the air out of the radiator. If they do not heat up then, it is best to consult a heating specialist.

Q.—Should I clear my roof of snow immediately after each snowstorm?

A.—No. It is not necessary to clear your roof at all unless it leaks. The snow acts as an extra blanket over your house. If it melts more rapidly than the snow on your neighbor's roof, get an architect, builder or insulation expert to show you how to stop the unnecessary leakage of heat from your house.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Neeley, Chester, paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. John Van Horn, Chestnut street.

"More Money"

by CHARLES

GRANT

SYNOPSIS

Success crowned every venture of Jasper Ingram, wealthy promoter. Millions were at his disposal much to the envy of Homer Alspaugh, his confidential secretary, who has all he can do to meet mortgage payments and the gold-digging demands of his flirtatious wife, Marian. Cathleen McCarthy, beautiful young stenographer, substitutes for Ingram's secretary while the latter is on vacation. Visiting her husband's office, Laura Ingram meets Marian Alspaugh and, realizing she is the type who can wheedle money out of men, asks Marian to be cigarette girl at a charity garden party. Laura had been a middle-class girl and marriage to Ingram represented security; to Ingram, his wife was the coolly selected instrument for a purpose he had at heart.

CHAPTER IV

Turning into their own drive, Jasper and Laura saw their son walking across the lawn accompanied by a girl whom Laura identified as "the little acting person—named Martin, or something like that."

"He seems interested," Ingram said.

The way Seward walked, the way he tilted his face to the girl, it would not have been plainer, had he worn a collar and chain, that he was Arline Martin's captive.

"I do hope everything will go off well," Arline was saying. "It will mean so much to me if I can have a real success."

"Of course you'll be a success. I thought you were perfectly great in your rehearsal just now. It's a fine play, and I think the whole thing is going to be a knockout. I know it is!"

"It's sweet of you to be so encouraging," she murmured. "Anyway it's helped a lot to see the grounds and all the arrangements. But having you the only member of the family at home, was a bit of luck for me. It's a wonderful spot for an outdoor performance, a sort of natural amphitheatre, isn't it?"

"I don't know about the natural part of it. I believe this whole place has been landscaped within an inch of its life. I was awfully glad to show you around, Miss Martin. I wish there was something else I could do—anything I could do, really. You'll let me know if there is, won't you?"

She nodded her lovely head. She was almost as pretty as she appeared to Seward's dazzled eyes. Beyond the harmony of delicate, well modeled features and appealing curves, beyond the charm of youthful coloring heightened to brilliance by the skilful use of make-up, was the almost startling beauty of her eyes, gray-blue as the depth of Arctic water and the low sun shining through it.

"You can clap, tomorrow," she told him. Their progress, slow as Seward had tried to make it, had brought them to her waiting car. "I shall rely on you to be my personal clique. You know how it's done, don't you? Let till the rest of the audience is letting up a little and then come in strong—you can nearly always start them up all over again!"

"I sure will," Seward promised. "But it won't be necessary. You'll wow 'em, without any help from me!"

Arline gave the handsome boy her best smile as she slid behind the wheel of her roadster. He was Jasper Ingram's son and therefore a conquest of some importance. For Arline Martin was on the make. Beneath the softness and grace of her exterior, she was as ruthlessly ambitious as Ingram himself. Whoever served her purposes was made use of, whoever was not useful, she discarded.

Her temperament made her honestly nervous about her success in the chief clou of a society vaudeville. A clever young actress, not long a professional, she was used to the exaggerated acclaim of her friends—and shrewd enough to discount their enthusiasm. Yet, if even half of what they said was true, there ought to be a future for her.

To appear under Mrs. Ingram's patronage, gave her, by far, the best opportunity to parade her talent she had ever had, for the Ingrams were not merely rich but also decidedly influential in professional circles. Everyone knew that Jasper Ingram was interested in music and the theater. He contributed largely to operatic and non-commercial theater endowments. Who knew but she might interest him? If she played well, anything might happen.

Marian Alspaugh had good cards and good partners that same afternoon. Her winnings, of course, she had to leave behind her for charity, but she still had her hundred dollars. Naturally she would tell Homer she had been cleaned out.

She drove home in high spirits,

But tonight as she drove the car into the garage she was almost cheerful. Even if she did live on the wrong side of the village, it wouldn't be easy for the Country Club crowd to ignore her after it met her at Mrs. Jasper H. Ingram's!

She went into the pink house and into the living-room where Homer relaxed in one of the over-stuffed chairs, sat listening to the radio. All the furniture in the room was dressed in summer covers of flowered cretonne. On a refectory table, back of the davenport, were scattered papers and magazines dealing with talking pictures. Copies of Vogue and Harper's Bazaar added an intellectual note. Other furniture included occasional tables and chairs, two bridge lamps, and a bowl of flowers—that her way taking her past the long eight-foot wall of the Ingram estate, Cranefields. Passing the wrought-iron gates she took her eyes from the road, drove slowly, and explored all there was to be seen of green velvet lawn, rhododendrons bordering the drive, rose-trellises and planned tree-groupings, a flash of steel that was a glimpse of an artificial lake, and one gable of the distant house.

Marion had never been inside those gates, but soon she would know the secret beauties of those guarded grounds!

On the other side of the village, the unfashionable side, lived the Alspaughs. Marion had known no better when she urged Homer to buy that house. She had supposed that, since the town was smart, any part of it must be all right. Now she was dissatisfied. They should have bought a place on the water front or at least near the Country Club.

"And what would be the point in that, seeing we've never been asked to join the Club—my husband would inquire."

Marion raved at the dumbness of men. "Don't you see, that's exactly why we've never been asked? We live in the wrong section. If we haven't enough money to live where the real people live, it's up to you to make more money! You didn't marry a hausfrau, satisfied to dig in a garden and meet you when you come out on the 5:17. . . I could be somebody in this town if you'd give me a chance."

2:00 P. M.

We all know the homemakers of this community can cook. Each meal demonstrates that. But when do the busy homemakers of this section have time for experimenting with cookery? Miss Vera A. Schneider, who will conduct the Courier cooking school, does much experimenting in her model kitchen. She will tell you shortcuts to the dinner table, new labor saving ideas, as well as new ways to prepare old foods.

YOU should not miss a single session of the Bristol Courier Cooking School. Every day Miss Schneider will give you something new, something worth while. Plan to attend this free cooking school and reap the harvest of expert advice.

Everything FREE! Many Gifts Will Be Given Away
MUTUAL AID HALL—Wood Street above Jefferson Avenue

Because of the importance that cooking plays in every home, the Courier is bringing to Bristol a cooking school to be conducted by an expert in home economics, an expert in balancing diets and in preparing menus. Then, too, there is the social aspect to the art of cookery. When you entertain you rack your mind to think of something new and unusual to serve. Miss Schneider can give you many ideas for party menus, including new salad recipes, new desserts and new ways of serving.

4c Mesa Verde Stamp

For the benefit and instruction of stamp collecting enthusiasts of Bristol and vicinity, the recently formed Bristol Stamp Club is planning a series of articles on the ten Park Issues. It is planned to have one article a week published.

This stamp being fourth in order of value, did not appear until after seven others had been issued, coming on September 25, 1934, at Mesa Verde Park, Colorado, and at Washington, D. C.

It is arranged horizontally and portrays Cliff Palace, the finest example of the ancient cliff dwellers habitation, and which is yet standing today at Mesa Verde National Park.

The stamp is brown in color and very attractive, showing the overhanging cliffs and interesting points of the ancient ruins.

The original photograph was taken by George A. Grant for the National Park Service.

Victor S. McCloskey, Jr., was the designer and the engraving was done by Carl T. Arit and W. B. Wells, of the Society at Washington, D. C.

An order of 15,000,000 of these stamps was printed, but a later printing brought the final total, as reported by Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, to 19,800,000.

Four plates were used, their numbers being 21328, 21329, 21330 and 21331.

Used copies of this stamp are not common as it is an odd rate, being more than the local letter rate and little more than the standard intercity rate of three cents.

HOLLYWOOD—Very few of our superstitious movie stars would have Janet Gaynor's nerve.

The redheaded actress has just bought the late George Hill's beach-house, the one to which the director, in that still unexplained extremity of spirit, went to end his life with a bullet.

You'd find very few takers for that house in Hollywood.

Even without the association, it is too far away from the film

colony's accepted

summer playground.

But Janet

Janet Gaynor

doesn't follow the movie crowd. She already lives in a house along the same stretch of beach.

And her superstitions are few.

One is to put on, for a shot in each picture, the shoe that she wore in

"Seventh Heaven." But you needn't look for it in "Farmer Takes a Wife".

She'll probably do it in a closeup.

The ladies of the Lyle Talbot fan club in Malvern, Penn. Island, would seem to establish some sort of record in loyalty. On the evening of Lyle's birthday, they gave a big dinner and propped the star's picture up in a chair at the head of the table.

This group of earnest partisans not only have vowed to see every Lyle

Talbot picture but have agreed to miss all of Clark Gable's, whom they deem to be usurping Lyle's rightful place in the sun.

Helen Vinson is so worried about current stories accusing her of temperament during the making of "Private Worlds". She says she didn't hold up production until a dress was dyed to suit her. It was the cameraman, she says, who ruled it wouldn't photograph well. And she hopes nobody believes all that about her demanding a dressing room on the set and commandeering Joan

Bennett's hair-dresser.

This department didn't print any of the rumors, but other people did and Helen is entitled to her say.

The most loyal fan of them all,

however, is Dick Barthelmess, mother, who has collected more than 60 volumes of press clippings about

Dick, and stills from every picture

he has made since 1916. Beginning with "War Brides," with Nazimova,

If the Hays office okays it, there'll be still another change in the title of Dick's latest. It started out as

"Small Miracle," but Paramount changed it to "Night Drama". Now, they want to call it "Four Hours to Kill".

Some of Monroe Owsley's friends are going to hate him. He is calling up everybody inviting them to a big party to be given in the Coconut

Grove on the night of Feb. 29. Sure, there is no such date this year. But only about 25 per cent of the invited guests thought of it in time for a comeback.

What prominent feminine star, a blonde who earns thousands a week, would blush to know she was found out in a certain matter at the races?

All afternoon, she screamed her head off when the odds went down on the horses she had picked. But the checks she gave her boy friend to cash in were all for two dollars.

County Bankers Oppose Plan For A Central Bank

After singing of "America" there was an address of welcome by Roy A. Large, New Hope, and a response by Mark Thatcher, Perkasie. The annual address of President Hurley reviewed the activities of the past year and dwelt upon some of the conditions which have confronted the bankers of the county.

Various committees of the association submitted reports through their chairmen: George W. Balderston, agriculture; Lester D. Thorne, legislative; T. A. Crouthamel, protective; H. H. Reinhardt, roads; C. Wilson Roberts, educational; Thomas B. Stockham, publicity.

Thomas Stockham, as chairman of the publicity committee, told the bankers "the Bucks County bankers may need to do considerable advertising and to arrange for a very definite publicity program to conserve those interests that have been built up through the years in the East."

"We need to awaken to the fact that the Delaware Valley offers opportunities for development far greater than that of the Tennessee Valley project and a reason for an expenditure of money in these developments more real than those being spent in the South and West."

"The people of eastern Pennsylvania can develop a plan that shall make the expenditure of funds for permanent improvement in this valley practical, and given a chance, can work out methods whereby such funds can be soundly and properly amortized."

"Your publicity committee therefore suggests that we heed the danger which threatens us and place a watch on our ramparts."

The Good Roads Committee specifically recommended a three-lane highway link on route 309 between Sellersville and Quakertown, and also to the widening of the present two-lane road from Quakertown to Allentown, and that route 113, which is a paved highway from Quakertown to Kulp's Corner, should be paved from Kulp's Corner on through to Newtown and Bristol, affording a more direct route from the upper end of the county and the center of the county to the lower end.

The report in full reads: "Your 'Good Roads Committee' reports that they have made inquiries in the different sections of the County regarding the activities toward better roads, and beg leave to report that the majority of the answers to our inquiries indicate that the state and township roads in Bucks County are generally in good condition, and even during the heavy snow storms the roads as a whole have been kept in a passable condition. Under the Pinchot road program many of the country roads have been improved and very few sections of the County are not accessible by either state or township improved roads."

"The consensus of opinion seems to be that our efforts should be directed to securing a three-lane highway link on Route 309 between Sellersville and Quakertown, and also to the widening of the present two-lane road from Quakertown to Allentown, and that Route 113, which is a paved highway from Quakertown to Kulp's Corner, should be paved from Kulp's Corner on through to Newtown and Bristol, affording a more direct route from the upper end of the county and the center of the County to the lower end. We have been requested to secure the co-operation of the various automobile clubs to this end.

"There appears to be general satisfaction on the roads that have been improved, as well as the general care of the roads, but the Association should endorse further improvements on making links between the upper, central and the lower ends of the County."

"Your Committee will appreciate any suggestions from any members of the Association."

Miss Miriam E. West, A. M. Ph. D., who is assistant professor of Economics, New Jersey College for Women, was the principal speaker at the morning session. She dwelt at length upon the technic of banking.

Officers were chosen as follows:

President, George W. Balderston, Morrisville; vice-president, William L. Leator, Riegelsville; secretary, Walter K. Terry, Perkasie; treasurer, Thomas E. Coe, Jr., Langhorne. An executive committee of William W. Hurley, New Hope; T. A. Crouthamel, Perkasie; C. W. Roberts, Southampton; Lester D. Thorne, Bristol; and H. H. Reinhardt, Quakertown, was named.

William W. Hurley was toastmaster at the dinner and the guest speaker was Prof. Theodore J. Grayson, Director of Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania.

Prof. Grayson spoke in a humorous vein but seriously too and he expressed his confidence in President Roosevelt and he urged the bankers to courageously press forward. He told them that the future of the country, to a great extent, lay in the hands of the country bankers.

Complete Preparations For Trials of Seven of Mais Gang

Attorney Achey, who will represent Wiley, also represents Joseph James Coffey, charged with accessory after the fact to murder.

Eckert, who has turned State's evidence, will be one of the leading witnesses for the prosecution, although he, too, is charged with murder, accessory after the fact to murder and aiding in secretion of a kidnapped person. Eckert is represented by a Philadelphia lawyer and it is quite likely that District Attorney Eastburn will not demand the death penalty in Eckert's case.

John F. Betz, Jr., Bristol attorney, was appointed by Judge Boyer to represent Farrell in the case.

Matthew Barrow alias Matt Barrett, the last member of the gang of seven to be arrested, is also charged with murder, accessory after the fact to murder and aiding in secretion of a kidnapped person.

It was Barrow who introduced Wiley and Farrell to Mais and Legenza, both of whom were recently executed in Richmond, Va. Barrow, it was alleged by Eckert at the hearing in the case, was present at the Eckert home in Philadelphia when the $8000 part payment ransom money was split up between the Weiss killers. Eckert testified at the hearing that Barrow received $500 of the ransom money.

Eckert testified at the hearing that Wiley and Farrell shot Weiss to death. Miss Mary McKeever, another alleged member of the gang, who is held in custody in another city, will be a star witness for the Commonwealth. She was a former sweetheart of Mais, and furnished the Bucks county authorities with a lot of information that it is said will assist in the conviction of the real killers, in order to save herself.

Safety-first will be the slogan of all officers in handling the defendants, all of whom are in the Bucks County Prison with the exception of Wiley, who is in the "pen," and Seibel and Mrs. Beatrice Wilkinson, who are on bail. Mrs. Wilkinson is charged with accessory after the fact to murder. It is alleged that she kept house for the gang in the Torresdale Manor cottage where Weiss was held prisoner.

Wiley will be brought up from the "pen" Monday under heavy guard. Special guards are on duty now in the county prison, and they include State Police. The Court House will be guarded inside and outside by State Police, Sheriff Horace E. Gwinner and several deputies.

These men are desperate criminals and we are not taking any chances whatsoever," Sheriff Gwinner said today. The local police too are co-operating in the safety measures.

Thirteen women are on the list of jurors summoned to report Monday morning, but whether there are any women on the list of seventeen who had been excused up until a day ago could not be learned today.

Sunday night the advance guard of newspaper writers, telegraph operators and photographers will arrive in town. Hotels and private boarding houses are well booked for next week. Two telegraph companies have installed special set-ups to handle the newspaper copy that will be sent to many cities.

Photographers inside the court room will be barred from the start. It will be announced that cameras brought into the court room will be impounded and violators of the rule that will be handed down when the trial starts, will be arrested for contempt of court.

"We are going to treat this case as an ordinary court case, without the sensationalism of some other trials," President Judge Hiram H. Keller said today. "We are going to be fair with the newspapermen but we will not allow a circus to be made of the Weiss case," he added.

Edmunds Insists People Be Consulted

Mr. Edmunds expressed the opinion that if a graded income tax is one of the objectives of revision, this can be procured under the present Constitution, and cited other States with similar constitutional limitations which have graded income taxes.

Representatives of the Philadelphia Constitution Club told the Senate Committee, of which Senator Owlett is chairman, that the selection of delegates to a constitutional convention should be on a non-political basis.

Hearings have developed the wisdom of the Republicans of the Senate in going slow on the Earle constitutional revision bill. It is full of faults and, if passed as submitted, would certainly have had to pass muster before the Supreme Court. It is to avoid any such possible entanglements that Mr. Edmunds pleaded.

Slowly but surely a Statewide sentiment in favor of a popular vote on whether or not a convention shall be held is being developed by hearings held and communications received by the Senate committee.

The Pennsylvania State Grange, outstanding agricultural organization of the State, takes practically the same view on revision of the State Constitution as Republicans in the Legislature have assumed.

The Pennsylvania Grange News, in the leading editorial of its current issue, says, referring to the constitutional measure now before the Senate, "any efforts to pass legislation rashly and without due consideration must be opposed."

Continuing its discussion of the subject the Grange News says: "The need for relief for the unemployed is imperative and no human being must be allowed to suffer. However, such problems as the proposed Constitutional Convention and other equally grave issues may well be approached with caution. The chief reason for a Constitutional Convention is to take the debt limitation out of the Pennsylvania Constitution. The men who framed the Constitution were on the right track when they wrote it. For more than forty years it kept the State free from debt. If the Constitution be ripped wide open and the way paved for going into debt, a heavy debt—perhaps a billion dollars—can be the only result. The carrying charges naturally will be a great burden to the taxpayers of the State, and the only persons who will be benefitted will be those who clip coupons. Both the State and the National Grange believe in a 'pay-as-you-go' policy."

The Grange favors laws to lift the tax burden somewhat from real estate.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 23—Apparently the Democrats at Harrisburg have very small regard for either household servants or farm workers.

House Bill No. 371, which amends the female labor law, provides a forty hour week for all women workers except those engaged in domestic duties or on farms. These may be worked 24 hours a day, seven days a week, so far as the proposed legislation is concerned.

Many women workers are of the opinion that this bill is too drastic. They say that while it will cut their hours of legal employment, it will also reduce their earnings. Very few of them are opposed to the eight hour day and not a few of the legislators have been hearing from back home, to the effect that instead of regarding this bill as beneficial, it is actually opposed to the best interests of many working women, who fear not only reductions in wages but replacement by male workers in case it is passed.

Miss Mary Bianco Feted By Two Clubs at Showers

On Wednesday evening the Bristol borough Democratic committee men and women tendered a surprise party to Miss Mary Bianco, Franklin street. Miss Bianco is a member of the Democratic committee of the second precinct, first ward, and her marriage to Rocco Nicoletti, Tacony, will take place on Sunday. Miss Bianco was presented with a table lamp. The evening was spent in a social way, followed by refreshments.

Those present: Misses Rachael Cianciolo, Marcella McGinley, Mary Bianco, Anna Lentini; Mrs. Mary Marseglia, Mrs. William Romig, Mrs. Christopher Weber; Messrs. Grover Yeagle, Raymond Updyke, John Fields, Angelo Rago, Nicholas Mislan, Edward Paolella, Philip Waters, Frank Mulhern, James Fandozzi, John Smoyer, Bristol; Max Koplin, Croydon; Miss Rose Pirollo, Tullytown.

On Thursday evening the Bristol Women's Democratic Club tendered a surprise to Miss Bianco at her home. The women presented her with a blue silk and lace negligee with slippers to match.

Mrs. Walter Parrish, Croydon, entertained with vocal solos; and Mrs. John Doyle, Langhorne, rendered piano solos. Refreshments were served. Miss Bianco is treasurer of this club.

Those attending: Misses Nettie Greco, Mary and Jennie Morici, Petrina Guarnieri, Anna Garamella, Anna and Frances Lentini, Frances Tamburella, Catherine and Anna Mangiacina, Adeline Rocco, Frances Lapina; Mrs. Anthony Pone, Mrs. Meno Marseglia, Mrs. Peter Tamburella, Mrs. Patsy Straffe, Mrs. J. Racagana, Mrs. A. Rocco, Mrs. Lillian Pistura, Mrs. M. G. Bianco, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Whyano, Mr. and Mrs. John Marcella, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Tamburella, Peter Bianco, Bristol; Mrs. Lillian DiVincenzo, Downingtown; Rocco Nicoletti, Tacony; Mrs. Parrish, Croydon; Mrs. Doyle, Langhorne.

BELMONT, Mass. — (INS) — The post of Commissioner of the Sinking Fund in this town is open and no one wants the job. Commissioner John H. Oakes stated he will not seek another term. Many other offices are being contested.

After Indoor Mile Honors

By BURNLEY

Today New York's track enthusiasts will be out in force to witness the climax of the current campaign—the National Indoor Championships; and as usual, chief interest will be centered on the runners.

Cunningham, Bonthron and Venzke have provided so many thrills in their historic mile struggles that any meeting of this trio automatically becomes the piece-de-resistance of the program for dead-in-the-wool track fans.

It is Cunningham, the sturdy, barrel-chested Kansan, who appears to be the top man of the trio at the present writing, and oddly enough, he is the least popular of the trio with the spectators.

After he had come on to spectacular victory over his two traditional rivals in the Millrose games early this month, Glenn received the well-known Bronx cheer, commonly known as the "raspberry," from at least a portion of the audience.

Probably the grim mid-Westerner's business-like air and colorless demeanor on the running track accounts for his lack of popularity with the fans. In sharp contrast, we find that the slim and smiling Gene Venzke, Penn stylist and former mile record-holder, is the idol of every track audience. Venzke is a picture runner, the most graceful of all the current track crop, and his smooth, space-eating stride is the very epitome of the so-called poetry of motion.

His beautiful running style catches on with the fans more than the plugging "brute strength" style of his Kansan arch-rival.

Besides, Gene has been the under-dog in all the mile clashes of the past couple of years, and naturally that makes him a sentimental favorite. When the veteran Penn racer made his sensational bid for victory in the Millrose games, passing both Bonthron and Cunningham, the crowd went absolutely delirious, with delight. Gene lacked the strength to sustain his spurt, and the burly Westerner out-footed him in the killing stretch drive, but Venzke got the big hand at the finish.
